OUR EXPERIENCE BRINGS RESULTS: Case Studies

Creation of Truck movement reporting

- The situation: Our client required visibility of truck movements to aid road network planning and had had problems obtaining data which was relevant to their needs.
- Our contribution: We entered into confidentiality agreements with Transport Operators and then downloaded their GPS data over a six month historical period. After a data cleansing process, we analysed and formatted the results and passed the finished (streamlined) data to the client.
- Key success: Our independent status enabled us to advise our client how GPS could and couldn't contribute to the project. Our industry experience and contacts meant that we were able to encourage operators to get involved by allowing us confidential access to their data which we then translated into a valuable report to enable the client to progress their project.

Industry Training Material

- The situation: Our client was contracted to supply training material to the industry, but had no in-house expertise in the transport and logistics industry.
- Our contribution: Through our knowledge, experience and industry relationships, we created material covering many facets of the industry for a range of candidates. The material was created specifically to match the training style of the client and the learning needs of the industry candidates.
- Key success: Our industry partners reviewed the material and found the content to be excellent and well suited to the audience. The client's other contractors have now adopted our easy learning format and refer industry specific content to CCS Logistics for either creation or approval.
